Red Group – The costs and benefits of SPP: how to collect and make best use of data?

This group will identify the resources and conditions required for effective data management to help procurement departments develop key performance indicators (KPIs), track their performance (monitoring) and successfully communicate savings to relevant stakeholders.

Key words: setting a baseline, open data, big data, energy and CO2 savings, economic cost savings, life cycle costing Orange Group – In a time-pressured working environment, what are the quick wins for SPP?

This group will identify the small changes that can have a significant impact when very little time, staff and financial resources are available.

Key words: low-hanging fruits, lighthouse initiatives, incremental change

Green Group – How to deal with verification and sustainability criteria?

This group will try to find ways of improving the verification process of sustainability criteria in tenders and identify approaches for dealing with sectors where few labelled products or services are available.

Key words: labels, verification, market availability

Purple Group – How to embed SPP into an organisation so that it becomes normal practice?

This group will look into approaches for engaging colleagues and other stakeholders to implement existing SPP strategies and how to contribute to the professionalisation of SPP at the organisational level. The group will also identify pathways for ensuring sustainability criteria are included in each issued tender.

Yellow Group – How to engage the market to find the most up-to-date sustainable solutions?

This group will look into approaches to engage the market (sounding, consultation, etc.) which ensure that it is done effectively, stimulates the local economy by encouraging SMEs to bid for tenders, and yields maximum benefit for all players (purchasers and potential suppliers).
